Nunavut Land Claims Agreement Workshop Panelists

FACILITATOR

Udloriak Hanson was born and raised in Iqaluit, Nunavut. She has two undergraduate honours degrees in Business and Education. She started her career in the private sector then moved into the non-profit sector advancing and promoting Inuit interests with Inuit land claims organizations. She also served as an Executive Assistant to the Minister of Environment and Sustainable Development with the Government of Nunavut. Hanson is currently working on policy issues relating to Inuit and the Arctic with Nunavut Tunngavik Inc. in Ottawa, Ontario. She has two boys, Phillip and Robert Comeau.

PANELISTS

Murray Angus is the coordinator of the Ottawa-based Nunavut Sivuniksavut (NS) college program. Founded in 1985, NS provides Inuit youth with the opportunity to learn about land claims, Inuit history, organizations and current issues while at the same time preparing for further post-secondary studies and/or entry into the Nunavut workforce. He is the author of several articles on aboriginal policy, and one book: And the Last Shall Be First: Native Policy in an Era of Cutbacks (NC Press, 1991)

Alastair Campbell is Senior Planning and Policy Advisor to NTI and formerly NTI's Assistant Director of Business and Economic Development. He previously worked for the Government of the NWT, DIAND and the Assembly of First Nations. Alastair has taught at various universities and has published on northern political development.

Terry Fenge is an Ottawa-based consultant on northern, environmental, Aboriginal and foreign policy issues. From 1985 to 1992 he was Director of Research and a Senior Negotiator for the Tungavik Federation of Nunavut (TFN) which negotiated the Nunavut Land Claims Agreement. Terry has worked part-time for Nunavut Tunngavik Inc (NTI) since 2001 to implement the agreement. He has an extensive list of publications on various northern issues.

Paul Irgaut is NTI's Wildlife Advisor, based in Iqaluit, Nunavut. Paul was a video journalist and reporter for CBC North for 10 years before moving to NTI in 2000. He is involved in various working groups on wildlife issues with the Nunavut Wildlife Management Board, the Government of Nunavut and the Department of Fisheries and Oceans.

Wayne Johnston has been a consultant dealing in mineral resource development issues, primarily related to mining on Inuit-owned lands in Nunavut, for the past six years. Prior to this, Wayne worked for eight years for NTI as Senior Advisor, Minerals, Oil and Gas, and for over twenty years before that, he worked as a consulting mineral exploration geologist.

Natan Obed is the Director of Social and Cultural Development for NTI. Natan, who is originally from Nain, Nunatsiavut, lives in Iqaluit, Nunavut with his wife, Letia, and their sons Panigusiq and Jushua. Natan has a B.A. in English and Native Studies from Tufts University, Boston. He has worked previously as socio-economic development director for Inuit Tapiriit Kanatami and as Voisey's Bay Project Impacts and Benefits Agreement coordinator for the Labrador Inuit Association.

Richard Paton is from Iqaluit and is currently the Director of the Policy & Planning Division, Department of Justice, for the Government of Nunavut. Mr. Paton has represented the on a number of key issues in negotiations including, most recently, as Deputy Chief Negotiator, Devolution. He has been involved with Inuit employment issues for the past 8 years in Nunavut in various capacities, including previously as Director, Inuit Employment Planning, Human Resources, for the Government of Nunavut, and as the Chief Operating Officer of Nunavut Tunngavik Incorporated. In addition to his professional career Mr. Paton is an active member in the community, is the proud father of 5 boys and a devout Ottawa Senators fan.

Paul Quassa is Vice-Chair for the Nunavut Planning Commission and Vice-Chair for the Nunavut Implementation Training Committee. He is also a member of the Legislative Working Group for the Nunavut Land Use Planning and Environmental Assessment federal legislation. Paul was President of the Tungavik Federation of Nunavut when the Nunavut Land Claims Agreement was signed in 1993, and is a former Mayor of Igloodik. His autobiography, edited by Louis McComber, is entitled Paul Quassa: We Need to Know Who We Are, (Nunavut Arctic College, 2008).

Richard Spaulding is a lawyer practising mainly in the field of Aboriginal and treaty rights. He represents Nunavut Tunngavik in consultations respecting Article 5-related legislative initiatives, and in proceedings of the Nunavut Wildlife Management Board. He also works with NTI on implementation legislation respecting Articles 11 and 12 of the NLCA, and with First Nations and boards in the Northwest Territories on land use planning issues.
