Inuit and Land Claims Organizations

Nunavut means our land in the language of Inuit. Nunavut is the homeland of Inuit in Canada's Eastern Arctic, and the newest territory in Canada. The political movement which led to the formation of Nunavut began with the Committee for Original Peoples Entitlement (COPE), and the foundation of Inuit Tapiriit Kanatami in 1971. In 1979, the Federal Court of Canada, in the Baker Lake case, recognized the existence of Aboriginal Title in Nunavut. In June 1993, the Nunavut Land Claims Agreement (NLCA) was ratified in a Nunavut-wide Inuit vote and by Canadian Parliament. The NLCA is the largest comprehensive land claim settlement ever reached between a state and Aboriginal Peoples anywhere in the world, and through it, Nunavut Inuit have begun to take their rightful place in Canada. Although the NLCA was signed in 1993, there are still significant obligations which have yet to be implemented. The majority of these obligations belong with the Government of Canada. For instance, there is still much work to be done to provide the promised balance between jobs, economic development, social and cultural promotion, and environmental protection, which the NLCA was intended to deliver.

Nunavut Tunngavik Inc. (NTI) is the organization that represents Inuit under the NLCA. NTI's mission is to foster Inuit economic, social and cultural well-being through the implementation of the Nunavut Land Claims Agreement. NTI implements Inuit obligations in the NLCA, and ensures that other parties to the NLCA meet their obligations. NTI's predecessor, Tunngavik Federation of Nunavut (TFN), signed the historic 1993 NLCA with the Government of Canada. NTI is governed by a Board of Directors elected by Nunavut Inuit who are 16 years of age and older. Three members of NTI's 10-member Board of Directors are executive officers of NTI. Six members are nominated by Regional Inuit Associations (RIAs) and include their presidents. The chair of Nunavut Trust also sits as an ex-officio member of the NTI Board.

Nunavut Trust

The Nunavut Trust manages and invests the almost $1.1 billion land claims settlement that was paid in yearly instalments by the Government of Canada to Nunavut Inuit until 2007. The Nunavut Trust also receives a share of the resource royalties paid to the Government of Canada from resource production on Crown land. The Trust is a taxable entity that distributes its net income for tax purposes to non-profit corporations or charities owned by Nunavut Beneficiaries. NTI is one of several designated beneficiaries of the Nunavut Trust. Six trustees appointed by the RIAs control the Trust. The chair of Nunavut Trust sits as an ex-officio member of the NTI Board of Directors.

Regional Inuit Associations

RIAs safeguard and advance the rights and benefits of Inuit in Nunavut's three regions. RIAs provide links to Inuit living in Nunavut communities. RIAs hold title for Inuit owned surface lands, and are designated to carry out certain Inuit obligations under the NLCA. NTI and the RIAs are responsible for the management of all Inuit owned land in Nunavut, and act as the advocate of Inuit interests in Nunavut.

Nunasi Corporation
All Inuit enrolled under the NLCA are shareholders of Nunasi Corporation, a Nunavut-wide Inuit development corporation. Nunasi Corporation is a special corporate body established for the benefit of its Inuit shareholders. Nunasi Corporation's uniqueness is based on the tapping of bottom-line considerations with concern for shareholders' environmental, cultural and social well-being. NTI, Nunasi Corporation, and RIAs each appoint a Board member and are trustees of Nunasi, representing Nunasi Board Initiatives. Nunasi Trust holds one issued share of Nunasi Corporation.

Hunters and Trappers Organizations
Inuit in all Nunavut communities are members of the community-based HTOs. HTOs manage harvesting among their members. Nunavut's three RWOs have contact information for the HTOs within their region.

Nunavut Inuit Wildlife Secretariat
NIWS' Board of Directors is comprised of the chair and vice-chair positions from the RWO Boards. NIWS' responsibilities include administration of regional budgets, disbursement of HTO annual core funding, and representation on territorial wildlife issues. NIWS provides logistical, administrative, financial and technical support to RWOs and HTOs within Nunavut.

Institutions of Public Government

IPGs are joint management boards through which Inuit and government manage resources together for the benefit of all Nunavummit. Members are named by both Inuit and government. These boards are funded by government.

Nunavut Impact Review Board
The Nunavut Impact Review Board (NIRB) protects and promotes the well-being of the environment and Nunavummit through the impact assessment process. NIRB screens project proposals to determine whether they have significant impact potential. In doing so, NIRB regularly conducts environmental and socio-economic impact assessments. Nine Board members are appointed by NTI, GN, and the Government of Canada.

The Nunavut Planning Commission
The Nunavut Planning Commission (NPC) plans land use in Nunavut to protect and promote social, economic, ecological and Inuit cultural values for future generations. This is achieved by preparing land use plans that guide and direct resource use and development. These plans provide for the conservation, development and use of land by establishing rules that address concerns about how land, fresh water, air, minerals, renewable and non-renewable resources, and how the outer land fast ice zone will be used. These rules establish the minimum standard for development by indicating what type of land use can take place there, when, and, in some cases, by providing special conditions. The nine Board members are appointed by NTI, GN, and the Government of Canada.

Nunavut Surface Rights Tribunal
The Nunavut Surface Rights Tribunal (NSRT) is responsible for regulating entry and access to lands, for determining rights of, and compensation payable to, the title-holder, and for determining the amount for wildlife compensation claims in Nunavut. NSRT is established under Articles 10 and 21 of the NLCA, and in accordance with Section 99 of the Nunavut Waters and Nunavut Surface Rights Tribunal Act. The Act provides for three to 11 members, including a chair appointed by the Government of Canada. The chair is selected by and from the members of the Board. At least two members must be residents of Nunavut.

Nunavut Water Board
The Nunavut Water Board (NWB) has responsibilities and powers over the use, management and regulation of land water in Nunavut. The NWB provides for the conservation and utilization of waters in Nunavut – except in national parks – in a manner that will provide the optimum benefits for the residents of Nunavut and the Government of Canada and Canadians in general. The nine Board members are appointed by NTI, GN, and the Government of Canada.

The Nunavut Wildlife Management Board
Under the terms of the NLCA, the Nunavut Wildlife Management Board (NWMB) is an independent IPG composed of nine members. Four members are appointed by Inuit, one by GN, three by the Government of Canada. The chair is nominated by the eight other members and appointed by the Government of Canada. The Board is the main instrument of wildlife management and the main regulator of access to wildlife in Nunavut. The NWMB's mandate is to help ensure the protection and wise use of wildlife and wildlife habitat for the long-term benefit of Inuit and the rest of the public in Nunavut and Canada. NWMB attempts to fulfill this mandate by carrying out its various functions, as set out in the NLCA, in cooperation with its Inuit and government partners.
